FOOD AND FRIENDS

Japan has been short of food since the Meiji Revolution (1868) opened the modern era of that country's history. The food question has always been uppermost in the minds of Japanese statesmen, as only 20 per cent of that country's land is arable and as the population increased, it was necessary to import larger quantities of rice, wheat, and soy beans from other countries. Many Japanese thought that the best solution for Japan's shortage of food was to conquer Manchuria. That the Japanese did in 1931, but it proved to be a mistake because the United States objected to it and Japan became, in time, involved in a devastating war which brought only defeat.

Since then Japan not only lost all the territory acquired subsequent to 1931, but also Formosa which had come into Japanese possession in 1895. From Formosa, Japan had obtained tea. sugar and other food products.

So, the United States has been contracting to sell Japan sorely needed foodstuffs from our vast surpluses. This has stirred up a tirade among the Communists, particularly in Peking, where plans have long been afoot for a Marxist revolution in ley, rice, cotton, tobacco, corn and wheat. According to this Chinese report, Japan was forced to accept $200,000,000 of American food. The com-

West ruffed and led his remaining spade. Declarer had to win in dummy with the ace but had no way of getting to his hand to draw West's last trump. When he tried to get out with a club, East stepped up with the jack of clubs, cashed the king of spades, and led another diamond. West's ruff defeated the contract.

"South would have made the game and rubber," Tilles accurately observed, "if he hadn't tried so hard for the 30-point overtrick. He shouldn't have bothered with trump finesses. He just draws four rounds of trumps and begins on the diamonds. West can ruff with his last trump, but South can get to dummy with the ace of spades to continue the diamonds if West has been clever enough to ruff the third diamond. South will surely make eight tricks in the red suits and the two black aces."

Social Agencies Council Elects Officers for Year

The annual luncheon-meeting of the Ulster County Council of Social Agencies was held Monday at Judie's Restaurant. In the absence of Captain Andrew S. Hickey, president, Gerald E.

Mr. Baer concluded that in the excitement and general confusion accompanying disaster, orderly relief measures undertaken by the Red Cross to relieve human distress in conjunction with governmental measures to restore community services, allay excitement and anxiety and promote public con-

A tip from Bob Elliott and Paul Richards' switch from Chicago to Baltimore gave the Orioles Donald Hugh Ferrarese, who schooled observers predict will continue handcuffing American Elliott, who murdered southpaw pitching in the National League for 13 years, faced Don Ferrarese in the Pacific Coast League. Toward the the end of the 1954 season, he told Richards, then managing the White Sox, that this was one left-hander who got right-hand hitters out. That's why the South Siders paid Oakland $30,000 for Ferrarese's contract.

Richards remembered Elliott's tip, and his second package deal in Baltimore-the first gave the Yankees Bob Turley and Don Larsen-was with the White Sox and included the unknown little portsider, Ferrarese.

Oddly enough, Ferrarese, who held the Yankees hitless for eight innings and dealt the champions their first shutout in 96 games, or since last July 6, the other afternoon, was plucked out of Saint series, 591. High single game was posted by Pete Fischer with Casey Stengel. Casey Stengel.

FERRARESE-PRONOUNCED Fer-are-ees-struck out 21 In-Cherokees recorded a 56 won, 34 dians and Yankees in his first two outings, losing a heart-breaker lost mark. Second was the Iro- to Bob Lemon and Cleveland while fanning 13. He slammed the door in the Yankees' faces for two innings in a relief assignment. 'When I first saw the kid in 1948, I hesitated about signing him because he was so small," recalls Professor Stengel. Ferrarese,

> "Oakland farmed him out and you'd hear, 'He's all right but-'. The young left-hander's usual trouble. He was wild," explains Man-

In eight seasons in the minors, with two out for Army service in Honolulu, during which he pitched, Ferrarese was undistinguished save for two stints. He won 18 for Oakland in 1954, fanning 184 but walking 174. Shipped to San Antonio for the closing five weeks of last season, he had a 9-0 record, whiffing 99 while walking 47 with an earned-run average of 1.49.

FERRARESE CREDITS Charley Dressen and Richards with helping him most. "I was strictly a thrower before Dressen got hold of me in Oakland," he recollects. "He helped me most by just pitching me. He shortened my stride.

"Richards balanced my pitching stance. I had been a bad pitcher with men on base. It took Richards and the coaching staff all spring, but they got my weight back on the left foot so I could get leverage on the ball."

"Don was wild to the left," explains Richards. "So we moved everything six inches to the right and that was it." The Indians and Yankees agree that Ferrarese, whose big league speed is faster than its looks, has the best curve they've seen thus far this year. It breaks down and away at the last split-second. Casey Stengel adds that the young man is the fastest pitcher he has set eyes on this season.

"He's quick in the strike zone, which is the secret of pitching," concludes Paul Richards. "When pitchers with sweeping curves get
